

Find trusted, free, ready-to-use vaccine materials

What is the Vaccine Resource Hub?

The Vaccine Resource Hub (VRH) is a national collection of free, culturally relevant, evidence-based materials to support vaccine communications and outreach—available in more than 50 languages. It's designed to help you respond to your community's needs with timely, vetted content.

Why use the VRH?

The VRH makes it easy to find materials you can use and share right away:

- Save time by using resources that are already vetted and ready to go.
- Choose from a variety of formats and languages.
- Stay responsive with content that reflects current vaccine topics and emerging conversations in the news.
- Most resources are unbranded and all are free to use without attribution, so you can adapt them for your audience.

What can you find?

Public-facing, evidence-based resources, including:

- Fact sheets and flyers
- Infographics
- Short videos
- Social media graphics and posts
- Toolkits and guides

How does it work?

1. Go to VaccineResourceHub.org to search by topic, language, or format.
2. Preview and download what you need.
3. Share directly or adapt for your community.

Stay updated with new resources

Sign up for the VRH newsletter to get the latest vaccine communication materials delivered to your inbox. You'll see new formats, languages, and topics as they're added, plus seasonal and timely resources you can share right away.

Sign up at: VaccineResourceHub.org/Newsletter

Start using the VRH today

Explore at: VaccineResourceHub.org